LOOKING THROUGH THE LENS OF EXODUS: YOUNG PEOPLE AND THE CHURCH'S GREAT STORIES

Taught by Dan Carlson

- What 'worlds' do you find yourself caught between? What strengths does this position give you? What challenges? What 'worlds' do you think young people in your community might feel caught between?
- How do you navigate the 'weird stuff' in the Biblical tradition (like God trying to kill Moses on the way back to Egypt)? What are other biblical stories you've either tended to avoid (because of their oddity) or found to hold surprising meaning upon further study and reflection?
- How do you relate to the person you were at various stages of your life—can you see your life story as a journey from oppression to freedom? If so, what has oppressed you and what does the freedom you've found look like?
